perintendent Mansfield, of the Indianapolis Vincennes road, shows that yesterday the road brought in six trains, on which were bauled sixty-seven coaches, loaded to their utmost capacity. He says the business will be duplicated to-day. The last train had fifteen coaches, carrying 1,008 passengers.

Train No. 37 yesterday morning over the Monon was run in four sections hanling thirty-four coaches, all well filled. Train No. 31 was also in four sections hauling twenty-nine coaches, and Train 33 in two sections hapling seventeen coaches-making a total of eighty coaches brought in during yesterday over the Monon. Most of its trains were unloaded at the East Washington-street crossings. The passenger traffic of the Vandalia was the heaviest of any day in its history. Between 4 A. M. and midnight last night it brought in twenty trains, averaging nine cars to a train, making a total of 180 cars. The train arriving at 8 P. M. from Evansytile hauled thirteen cars, every seat and the aisles being full of people.

It was a great day with the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, which brought in nineteen trains, hauling from eight to ten cars each. At one time there were eleven trains on the road between Cincinnati and Indianapolis. A considerable per cent. of the business came from northern Ohio and porthern Michigan. Most of the roads will this forenoon bring in fully as many passengers as yesterday forenoon, and have made extra efforts to get all apecial trains in here in good time to witness the parade. yesterday's business was the number of

One of the most interesting features of roads which were represented in the trains of the different connections, showing how far-reaching are the Indianapolis lines in connections. There were among the number cars of the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis & Iron Mountain, the Santa Fe, the Chicago & Alton, the Wabash, the C., B. & Q., the C., R. turned over to them 20 per cent. more people than they had been notified of, and from points on their line the business was 30 per cent, heavier than the company had looked for or had prepared to handle. It is admitted that the baggage department of the Union Railway company has a system which works admirably and in the future will be the accepted method of handling baggage where there are large e baggage is piled check outside. in two rows, and each row shows the last number of the check. For instance, if the last number on a check is 8 it goes into the No. 8 pile of trunks which has all checks ending with the figure 8. Then to eatch the number at a glance, each trunk is shalked its number on the end, and can be readtly found in a pile of trunks which are usually piled four trunks high. In this manner, baggage, when called for, is delivered very expeditiously. General Baggage Agent Ferguson has with him twelve expert baggagemen sent here by the Pennsylvania lines, fifteen sent by the Big Four and three by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton in addition to the number given on Monday morning.

THE ILLINOIS ARRIVALS.

Columbia Post, of Chicago, and Battle Flags with Histories,

Columbia Post, No. 706, of Chicago, arrived in the city yesterday, and they are about the finest looking set of men, as a body, that has reached the city. The post has adopted something out of the usual line in its organization, and every member must be voted in on the same principles as control the most select clubs, in this manner securing for them the very best men in the city. The membership is limited to 150 and when that point is reached no more will be taken until there be a vacancy caused by

On arrival here they established quarters at the Denison, where they have several parlors on the first floor, and where they are doing things in a style that is unprecedented to the distory of G. A. Purington. who has for fourteen been commander of the drill of St. Bernard Commandery, Knights Templars, of Chicago, a squad that has won first prizes wherever they have entered a contest. He promises some well-executed movements by the Columbia Post in the parade to-day.

The post is accompanied by the Second Regiment Band, one of the finest bands in the world's fair city. It gave a concert on the balcony of the Denison last evening, and will precede the post on the parade today. The post is only three years old and is composed of about as companionable a set of veterans as will be found in any organization. VERMONT AND IOWA ARRIVE, Good Delegations from a Long Distance-Interesting Relic.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon about one hundred veterans from Vermont arrived at the Bates House and engaged headquarters for the delegation. The veterans are in charge of Department Commander G. W. Doty, of Morrisville, Vt. A. A. Miles, adjutant-general; Frank Kenfield, quartermaster-general, and Gen. W. W. Henry. past department commander, accompanied the delegation. They left Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and had a tiresome journey. Each delegate were in his hat a sprig of evergreen brought from the hills of New England. Department Commander Doty says there are 112 posts in the State, comprising a membership of 5,345, "None of our posts," said he, "has come in a body. We think it is too far to come to Indianapolis, though I can say it is a beautiful location for the national encampment." Accompanying that department of the G. A. k. was the Woman's Relief Corps, of which Mrs. Calista Jones is president. Twentyfive delegates of the corps are attendance, with a possibility a number of arrivals to-day. The total membership of the relief corps in Southern, the Queen & Crescent, the Great | that State is 2,500. The General Sherman Post, of Sac City, lows, arrived at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. This is Department Commander Phil Shaller's post. There are two handred and fifty posts in lows and about twenty thousand members. There are 26,000 soldiers tu the State who are not members of the G. A. R. Large additions to the organization are expected this fall. About fifty came with the comnumbers of pieces. At the different bag- | mander yesterday and many more are exgage rooms the company occupies pected to-day. Among the number were Adjut.-Gen. M. L. Leonard, Senier Vice Commander Thomas W. Hell and Quartermaster-general D. W. Graff.

PICKPOCKETS NOT NUMEROUS. Police Did Not Find Nearly so Much Work

as They Expected. Chief Splann, of the detective force, and his detail of assistants at the Union Station had not been called upon, nor had they detected any of the light-fingered gentry plying their nefarious vocation, up to 6 o'clock last evening. This is something remarkable to be said on such an occasion as yesterday offered for these "fine workers" to "touch" the wallets of the surging throng that all day swayed restlessly to and fro in the station.

Said Detective Harvey Case, "We are watching dilgently for the 'good' people to put in an appearance, but up to date none of them have shown themselves. If they do and are known, we will corral them on sight. We will give them not a ghost of a show to get in their work. I am convinced they know this and have concluded to take no chances. As it is, we have nothing to do, not a single 'pinch' is recorded at the stationhouse up to this hour (5 P. M.), and no pockets have been reported riffed. It is an unusual thing to be able to make such a flattering report, considering this great crowd and its attendent jam.'

AT THE UNION STATION.

Terrific Jam of People All Day-Posts That Came In. The scene presented at the Union Station during yesterday has never had a parallel in the history of crowds in this city. It was a jam from early morn until midnight. The magnificent building held a living. moving mass of humanity, representing every condition of life, commingling together good-humoredly in an almost vain attempt to make an escape from the surging crowd, which was being augmented every few minutes by the arrival of special trains loaded to the platforms. As the special trains bearing the G. A. R. veterans came into sight the cannon located near the east end of the train sheds belched forth a welcome salute. By the time the smoke cleared away, the long trains were quickly emptied of their human freight. Arriving posts were speedily organized into line by their several post commanders. The escort and reception committees were diligent, and the posts were immediately taken under the fostering care of the gentlemen composing these committees, and were as promptly escorted to the camp to which they had been previously assigned. The trains arrived too fast, however, and at times the pressure their annex called "The Columbia Post from the enormous crowd was so Bushwhackers," composed of a few close great about the depot that a num- ham Faucett. The trains that arrived almost every minute were all heavily loaded and carried as many cars as the great engines could conveniently pullover their respective lines. the crowd. Then the gaudily uniformed post commanders and militiamen commingling with the crowd, figing about here and there, forming their men into line, giving orders in a gruff, soldierly voice, all combined to make an enlivening spectacle such as has not been witnessed in this city since the close of the war, when Governor Oliver P. Morton mustered out the Indiana soldiers at the old State Capitol grounds.

Lincoln wha is supported solidly by the department for the office of commander-in-chief, was not in the delegation, being compelled to remain at home on account of the serious illness of his wife. He will arrive this morning if his wife's health is such as to permit his leaving her. A delegation of about one hundred men arrived at noon from Springfield, Ohio, over he Peoria division of the Big Four. under command of Col. H. C. Forbes. They were a signed to quarters in school No. 9. Probably no arrival at the station yesterday morning attracted more attention than the Pennsylvanians, who came in about four hundred strong from Pittsburg and Allegheny. They were under the com-mand of Maj. John Hancock. The features that attracted attention to them was the presence of the Godfrey brothers and Vickeroth sisters, who are the "mascots" for Oliver Rippey Post, No. 41, of Pittsburg.

The Godfrey brothers are six and eight years of age, and the Vickeroth sisters six and fourteen years. They are experts in drill tactics, and have attained a national reputation by the preficiency displayed by them at the national encampments for the past few years. They are taken as "mascots" by Oliver Rippey Post to every encampment and their small field pieces never fail to attract a great deal of attention. This post also carries with it a famous war relic in the battle flag carried by Adjutant lones, of the Sixty-first Pennsylvania. The flag has gone through thirty-seven battles. and become so tattered and torn by the storm of bullets that have passed through it that there is scarcely enough of it in any one piace to cover one's hand. The flag will be carried in the parade to-day. The delegation was assigned to school No. 3. Among the arrivals attracting the attention of the assembled crowds was a train of nine cars on the I., D. & W. In the train were four flat cars with canyas sun-shades tected by railings, and as the train pulled into the station the crowd began to jeer lustrly, calling "See the cattle care," and it did present much the appearance of a stock train as it pulled into the train-sheds. A lew minutes before noon a special train of fifteen coaches arrived over the L. E. & W., bringing a delegation of one hundred and lifty men from Springfield, Mass., the others having been taken up along the ine. Another section of the same train, consisting of eight coaches, arrived an hour later. The officers with the delega-tion were: W. T. Derby, commander; E.

ON LATER TRAINS. Delegations Continue to Come in from All

Directions. After supper the crowds which thronged the train sheds had materially decreased, and the escort and information committees were able to transact their business with dispatch. The special train of twelve cars from Chicago, bearing the department commander, E. Blodgett, of the Department of Illinois, arrived at 7:30 P. M., with the entire staff of the department commander accompanying him in a special car. With him was the George L. Nevins Post, No. 1. of Rockford, Ill., with a large delegation, and a number of Illinois posts represented by smaller numbers. The train deposited a load of about six hundred persons in the Union Station. The department has headquarters at the Denison House.

The Department of South Dakota arrived at about 7:45, with about fifty members, under command of the department com mander, M. C. Nash, and staff, as follows: Senior Vice Commander E. E. Cleff, Junior Vice Commander C. S. Blodgett, Assistant Adjutant-general D. H. Hawn, Quarter-master-general H. H. DeLong, Assistant Quartermester-general I. N. Minor. Capt. C. H. Leaman and Capt. R. N. Hopkins, of the Illinois Naval Veteran Association, have been most cordial in their expressions of the attentions paid to them by the citizens' committee and by the press since the meeting of the naval association, beginning Saturday. Captain Leaman said that they had never been so well received and recognized, and the attentions which had been offered had been so generous that the association had drawn up resolutions thanking the press for their notices. The association appreciates particularly the privilege of divine worship, and Suuday we listened to two very fine sermons. The city, the homes and the churches have united in making the meeting a success. Captain Leaman said that he did not think that the G. A. R. appreciated the work which the navy took in the war. That he had heard it said that if the navy had not been at the battle of Vicksburg it might have been going on till this time.

AT TOMLINSON HALL.

[Concluded from First Page.] at the reunion in the Commissioners' Court room, at the courthouse, yesterday afternoon. The room was crowded, but it would have been a mighty small room for a regiment. The decorations were not extensive, although they were tastefully arranged. Capt. Gild Perry, of Ellettsville, presided and introduced Maj. John B. Glover, as the first speaker of the afternoon. Major Glover spoke strongly on the pension question, and his remarks were warmly applanded. Said he:

My Comrades of the old Thirty-eighth-It is a pleasant privilege that I have of welcoming you to this beautiful city and to the great encampment. I not only welcome you as comrades, but I also extend, to every one of you, my sincere Few relations in life can be more sacred than those between comrades, who "forsook all and risked all," that the country might live. I can hardly express to you the pleasure I feel in being permitted to again look into your faces, many of which I have not seen for nearly thirty years. But this pleasure is tinged with sadness and sorrow, when I think of the great number who are not with us, who have responded to the last roll call, and have entered the "grand encampment" above. We ought also to cherish in our hearts those dear old veterans who, from the infirmities of age that have come to them, too soon, on account of exposure on the march, in the camp, or on the pattlefield, are not able to share with us the joys of this happy reunion.

It is now nearly a third of a century regiment turned their faces to the South, to do and many of them to die for the honor of the flag. No men ever went on a holier mission. How well they performed their part in that terrible drama, let history and the grass-covered mounds strewn from the Ohio to the sea, be our answer.

We are older, my comrades, than we were when we crossed over the "beautiful river," on Sept. 21, 1861, and joined the forces of that gallant soldier and patriot, Gen. Lovell H. Rousseau. Our step is not quite so clastic as when we marched into Camp Noble, to the stirring air of "The Girl I Left Behind Me," striving in our then awkward way to keep step to the music of the Union. This great government owes you a debt of gratitude that can never be paid. Some of you old heroes may receive from a grateful country a small pension. He is a mighty mean man who grudges you the pittanee! People who build monuments to Jeff Davis are hardly the kind of patriots to dispense pensions to veterans! It's a very mean sort of a sneak who goes "nosing" around to see if some old veteran, who is only waiting the final "call," is not able to do a full day's work at manual labor. It is a shame and a disgrace to this great country. Does any one say that you have been sufficiently paid for your services! Many of you, my comrades, have performed in one single hour a service that you would not do again for all the gold in the United States treasury, if money were the only incentive. The man who imagines that you were induced to face the leaden rain and iron hail, from Perryville to Bentonville, for the paltry sum of $13 a month s as devoid of patriotism as an army mule. Love of country is kin to love of God. It will ead one to break up the most cherished rela tions of earth. The sentiment is as old as hu manity, and it is not confined to civilization.

After Major Glover's speech, Captain Perry spoke feelingly of the regiment's history in the great war. The Thirty-eighth went out with 450 men from New Albany and the surrounding country. At the battle of Perryville it lost a hundred men and had sixty wounded. The brunt of the battle was thrown on the regiment time and again, but the boys never faltered. At Stone river another hundred of the leans: John H. Roberts, S. V. C., Jennings. brave fell, while at Chicamauga 110 were La.; N. A. Anderson, J. V. C., Vicksburg, killed. The regiment supported Hooker at Lookout Mountain, and was in the front of | theattendance will not be so large by far at the forces that assaulted Missionary Ridge. Edmund Hostetter, who was captain of Company E, was present yesterday, and he brought with him a copy of the Evansville paper recording the return of the regiment | and was in a Louisiana prison for five or from the war, and showing the brilliant | six months, when he was exchanged. He record made in numerous battles. Others made addresses. The Thirty-eighth's headquarters will continue at the Commissioners' Court room.

> Signal Service Veterans. Where the Mayor's private secretary has been wont to rest in his elegantly furnished office in the court-house basement, the veterans of the signal service will meet this week. There were a few of the members at the headquarters yesterday morning, but | ton; treasurer, Thomas Downs, Rushville, the reunion proper will not be until Wednesday and perhaps not until Thursday. Ex-Governor Forsker, who was a signal service officer during the war, may be here and make an address. There will probably be a hundred or more at the reunion. There was an attendance of 100 at Washington, but the association is stronger in the East than it is in the West. President Scott Butler, of Irvington, is thechairman of the executive committee baving the arrangements for the old signal corps men in charge. President Butler was in the service and was at Allatonna at the time General Cre en his famous message to wener it berman, 'the message that Sherman first sent is itself a noted one. The signal corps played its most conspicuous part in the war at Allatoona and Kenesaw Mountain. Corse was at Alla-toona with several million dollars' worth of rations and other supplies which the rebei army was trying to obtain by an assault. Sherman was on Kenesaw Mountain trying to get to the relief of Allatoons, but the enemy was between him and the supplies. Then the signal corps distinguished itself by telegraphing over the heads of the enemy. Sherman sent the message: "Hold the fort." This order was afterward put in the form of a well-known hymn. Corse's answer was: "I am here minus a jaw bone and part of an ear, but I will hold here till hell freezes over." There are only one or two of the old signal officers now in the regular army, yet the system put in practice by these men has been adopted, with variations, the world over. Brigade of "Regulars."

The "Regular" Brigade of the Fourteenth

Army Corps, consisting of the regulars who went to the front when the war broke out, began their reunions at the surveyor's office in the courthouse, yesterday. There were about one hundred members of the association present. David Laken, of Columbus, O., presided. An election of officers was held, and all the old officers were reelected. David Laken continues as president; W. R. Carson, of Muncie, vice-president; E. C. Beech, of Columbus, O., secretary and treasurer, and Theodore W. Brake, of Toledo, O., chaplain. The meeting in the afternoon was in the shape of an old-fashioned camp-fire. The attendance of members was about as large as it
